

Collective Futures BERLIN 2014

Collective Futures is our battle against the immediacy of things; an immediacy that has become the rule of law in terms of how things happen and how as “consumers” we expect them to happen. If it's not immediate, it's not relevant. We believe the opposite is true. While Collective Futures Berlin doesn't aim to be a permanent event, our goal is that the impression it leaves on its participants and attendees becomes food for thought and an initiator for tangible collaborations to occur. The event itself is not permanent, but its underlying ideas and concept should be.

During the span of 4 nights we will be taking residency inside Berlin Community Radio. There, we will be joined by local visual artists, DJs, cultural promoters, thinkers and doers to explore the possibilities of a borderless state of mind through collaboration. After all it's through collaborating with others that we can truly convey a more versatile form of creativity. To complete our dream, we are looking for like minded partners: that is people or brands who share our values of creativity thru collaboration, a sense of community, and the importance of engaging in cultural exchange.

D
R
U
R
Y
A multidisciplinary creator now focusing on the art of calligraphy
drurybrennan.com

I N
A
W
E
I
S
E
A true renaissance woman, working in large scale installations and public performances
inawaise.com

P
A L
E
F
R
O
I
An art project and screen print studio run by Damien Tran and Marion Jdanoff
palefroi.net

Y
O
K
O
S
E
Y
A M
A
A Japanese scenographer and multimedia artist specializing in spacial time-based art
yokoseyama.com

Collective Futures Berlin is happening between

September 25th/28th

at Berlin Community Radio

colectivofuturo.com / miguel@colectivofuturo.com